Academic profile

In the past 5 years, my research, teaching, and community outreach activities can be summarized as an academic quest to uncover the role of human diversity in societal inequalities and ways to work towards inclusive societies that mitigate such inequalities, starting from the perspective of childhood. How children are parented, educated, and supported by various institutions and services has major repercussions for their knowledge, skills, preferences, opinions, and behaviors in adulthood. These processes in turn can only be understood in the context of cultural, socioeconomic, and political factors that provide the backdrop of the intergenerational transmission of salient aspects of citizenship. Key examples of my academic work within this broader framework include:

- Scientific research on culture, parenting and child development in ethnic minority and socioeconomically disadvantaged families in a variety of countries (e.g., Portugal, Chile, Egypt, Yemen, Indonesia, South Africa)
- Scientific research on the intergenerational transmission of gender and racial prejudice and the role of educational, societal and political factors in this process
- Teaching and mentoring graduate students from low-to-middle-income countries to enhance their academic careers
- Outreach activities aimed at fostering educational opportunities for ethnic minority mothers and children in the city of The Hague, in collaboration with the local government, and local institutions (such as schools).
- Founder of Athena's Angels, who strive for equal career opportunities for men and women in academia through public action and lobbies.
